What My Vote Will Mean to Me

To me, my vote will mean that I am finally an adult. It will mean that I have a voice in what happens in my very own way. It means I can take pride in what I have accomplished. I can have my own opinion and nobody can say my opinion is bad. One of the great things about casting a vote is that nobody knows who you voted for.

My vote will mean that it gives me a chance to honor the veterans that fought for our right to vote. People have died and are still dying daily for our right to vote. I will take pride in who I vote for. I will choose who I vote for not because somebody says it's cool to vote for them. I will vote for them on how they will help the country. I will vote for somebody that will not mess around and somebody who will stand up for America and do what is necessary. Don't ever let somebody tell you who to vote for because it is not their vote.

It is very important to vote, in my opinion, because it gives everybody a chance to have a voice. Although I am not able to vote yet, I will when I am 18yrs old. I have the right to vote when I am old enough because of the veterans that have fought for the rights in America. This is what my vote will mean to me.
